

The Launch of Journal of Advances in Medical, Dental and Health Sciences [Adv Med Dent Health Sci]

Dear fellow professional colleagues, practicing healthcare professionals and researchers. It is indeed a great privilege and an honour for us to be addressing you all at the launch of the first issue of Advances in Medical, Dental and Health Sciences (AMDHS). The journal aims at helping the development of multidisciplinary research among allied health sciences researchers and practitioners.

Advances in Medical, Dental and Health Sciences (AMDHS) is being launched. AMDHS is an Open Access, Internationally Peer Reviewed Journal in the field of Medical Sciences and will publish issue quarterly (4 issues/yearly). It will be published by OZZIE Publishers, which is a non-profit private organization, to bring allied health science disciplines on a single platform.

AMDHS welcomes articles with theoretical or applied approaches, focusing on different phases of medical, dental and health sciences research; medical, dental and health production and management; discovering new medicines, new technologies and new ways to manage human health. Research papers can represent broad range of medical, dental and health related sciences including biochemistry, epidemiology, genetics, pharmacology, endocrinology, biomedical engineering, clinical and laboratory sciences, physiotherapy, and psychology. All articles are now welcome.

MDHS publishes the following articles types:

- Research Articles
- Review articles/ Systematic reviews and meta-analysis
- Short communications
- Brief Reports
- Case Reports
- Letter to The Editor

We are grateful for your kind support for making our previous journals a success, and we are looking forward to get your consistent support for AMDHS to a leap forward. Invitations are also open for medical science experts to join our editorial and review board team..

Lastly, on behalf of the Editorial Board and review members of the Journal of Advances in Medical, dental and Health Sciences, we are delighted to announce the inauguration of the first issue of AMDHS and welcome the submissions from medicine and allied health science researchers.
